New Facebook feature will make your best friends gay - keiferski ===== sciurus This is nothing new. Right click the "comments" tab and the "preference" section is where this used to be (which I believe Facebook removed because it was overused). ----- kolbe I suspect this will be very poorly received. ~~~ herbst I have no idea why you were downvoted, but me as well. Like in every other case that just come up, its just a few users who dont understand why its a good thing. Mixed in the legs: the mixed in malignancy (MIM) phenotype of isolated micronodular lung disease (ILD). Although a significant proportion of ILD patients have micronodular lung involvement, it has been difficult to distinguish between benign and malignant disease. The working definition of ILD associated with benign nodules has not been clearly defined. To identify the immunologic phenotype of isolated micronodular lung disease (IML) that required a lung resection. Preoperative, perioperative and postoperative tissue and serum samples were obtained from a set of 13 patients with IML and 17 patients with nonmixed ILD who had undergone a lobectomy, wedge resection or limited segmental resection. Biopsy specimens were analyzed on an immunof proving that these issues can't be simply relegated to the confines of the political arena. The major broadcast news networks have carefully reported on the context of the shootings and the issues that they raise, but have otherwise ignored them. This is of course all understandable: These mass killings, like the ones we've seen in Norway and in Nairobi, are events with horror enough to keep coverage very focused on the immediate violence. But any successful politics on race and any effective public education about white supremacy involves exposing those who promote racist ideas to the level of their own self-assessment. Democrats particularly have a responsibility to stand up against the far right, and that duty has particularly been compounded by the fact that the most prominent white supremacist in the U.S. is a Democrat who cannot seem to win a general election without the help of a super PAC. To begin to do that, it is important that the well-publicized call for a moratorium on political discussion of race in America takes on new life and meaning. Progressives need to pause and reflect for a moment about the damage they are doing by keeping alive the idea that whites can have a legitimate reason to believe that race-based remedies to racial inequities are the only legitimate solutions. When a prominent Democrat urges the NAACP and Black Lives Matter to “quietly disappear” and to “get out of the way,” it is, at the least, worth asking about what he believes the race-focused organization did that was wrong. So for those in the media and elsewhere who have been affirming the idea that white supremacy is both nonsensical and a crime, and that race relations would be better without that color-based thinking, perhaps it would be worth stopping and pausing. It is not as if this pattern has not been visible to anyone over the course of this year. Trump ran for president, stoking the flames of white resentment throughout his candidacy and
